(3) the subject matter of the complaint has been the subject of court proceedings where there has been a decision on the merits; or

(4) the subject matter of the complaint is the subject of current court proceedings, unless proceedings are stayed or sisted (by agreement of all parties, or order of the court) so that the matter may be considered by the Financial Ombudsman Service; or

(5) dealing with such a type of complaint would otherwise seriously impair the effective operation of the Financial Ombudsman Service.

3.3.4B G Examples of a type of complaint that would otherwise seriously impair the effective operation of the Financial Ombudsman Service may include:

(1) where it would be more suitable for the complaint to be dealt with by a court or a comparable ADR entity; or

(2) where the subject matter of the complaint has already been dealt with by a comparable dispute resolution scheme; or

(3) where the subject matter of the complaint has previously been considered or excluded under the Financial Ombudsman Service (unless material new evidence which the Ombudsman considers likely to affect the outcome has subsequently become available to the

(4) it is a complaint which:

(b) has been referred without the consent of the other eligible complainant or complainants,

(1) before he has made a determination, he has received in writing from the respondent:

(2) the Ombudsman considers that the complaint:

(b) would more suitably be dealt with by a court as a test case.

[deleted]

3.3.6 G Factors the Ombudsman may take into account in considering whether to dismiss a complaint so that it may be the subject of a test case in court include (but are not limited to):

(1) whether the point of law is central to the outcome of the dispute;

(2) how important or novel the point of law is in the context of the dispute;

(3) the significance of the consequences of the dispute for the business of the respondent (or respondents in that sector) or for its (or their) customers;

(4) the amount at stake in the dispute;

(5) the remedies that a court could impose;

(6) any representations made by the respondent or the complainant; and

(ii) make interim payments on account of such costs if and to the extent that it appears reasonable to do so; and

(2) the Ombudsman considers that the complaint:

(a) raises an important or novel point of law, which has important consequences; and

(b) would more suitably be dealt with by a court as a test case.

3.4.3 Factors that the Ombudsman may take into account in considering whether to cease to consider the merits of a complaint so that it may be the subject of a test case in court include (but are not limited to):

(1) whether the point of law is central to the outcome of the dispute;
(2) how important or novel the point of law is in the context of the dispute;
(3) the significance of the consequences of the dispute for the business of the respondent (or respondents in that sector) or for its (or their) customers;
(4) the amount at stake in the dispute;
(5) the remedies that a court could impose;
(6) any representations made by the respondent or the complainant; and

Part 5

The rule in this Part is made by the Financial Conduct Authority in relation to the compulsory jurisdiction of the ombudsman scheme, and by the Financial Ombudsman Service (with the approval of the Financial Conduct Authority) in relation to the voluntary jurisdiction of the ombudsman scheme.
